Mission

Kehillath Shalom Synagogue builds meaningful lives through community and the tools of our Jewish heritage.

Vision

Kehillath Shalom Synagogue seeks to be a source of strength, support, and inspiration for the greater Huntington and Long Island community.

Values

We strive to realize these core values in every initiative and interaction:

Talmud Torah: Sacred Study

We are lifelong learners. We delve into the wellsprings of our tradition, taking hold of Torah and challenging it to speak to our lives today.

Kedushah: Holiness

We open ourselves to manifestations of the divine as transmitted in our tradition and experienced in our lives.

Kehillah: Diverse and Inclusive Community

We nurture a diverse, participatory, joy-filled community that embraces Jews, seekers and our loved ones. As we encounter difference, we strive to respect each other's voices, listening deeply and engaging with hesed (open and generous hearts).

Ahavat Yisrael: Hope and Healing

We act to bring about the vision that the Jewish people, in Israel and throughout the world, will flourish along with our neighbors in peace and security. We seek healing for the rending of our communities and our hearts.

Tzedek: Justice and Sustainability

We fight for justice, sustenance, and dignity for all peoples. We work toward sustainability for our world.

Hiddush: Evolving Judaism

Inspired by Torah, the wider world, and the Jewish people in all our diversity, we create new ways of expressing Jewishness.

Reconstructionism:
The Evolving Religious Civilization of the Jewish People

Reconstructionists define Judaism as the evolving religious civilization of the Jewish people. By "evolving" we mean that Judaism has changed over the centuries. The faith of the ancient Israelites in the days of Solomon's Temple was not the same as that of the early Rabbis. And neither of those faiths was the same as that of our more recent European ancestors. Each generation of Jews has subtly reshaped the faith and traditions of the Jewish people.

Reconstructionist Jews seek to nurture this evolution. We see it as the lifeblood of Judaism, the power that allows Judaism to continue as a dynamic tradition in every age.

By "religious" we mean that Judaism is the means by which we conduct our search for ultimate meaning in life. God is the source of meaning. We struggle, to be sure, with doubts and uncertainties.

Reconstructionists affirm that struggle; we believe it is the duty of all Jews to question and to study in order to find unique paths to the divine.

We believe in a God who inhabits this world and especially the human heart. God is the source of all our generosity, sensitivity, and concern for the world around us. God is also the power within us that urges us toward self-fulfillment and ethical behavior.

We find God when we look for meaning in the world, when we are motivated to realize the goals of morality and social justice, when we pray and we delve deeply into the recesses of contemplative consciousness.

By "civilization" we mean that Judaism is more than a religion. The Jewish people share historical memory and historical destiny. Judaism includes a commitment to our ancient homeland and language. We share a love for Jewish culture, Jewish morality, and Jewish philosophy. We are heirs to a rich legacy of literary and artistic achievement, of laughter and tears, a legacy which continues to grow in our day.

By "the Jewish people" we mean that all Jews, whether by birth or by choice, are members of the extended Jewish family. We recognize a diversity of Jewish religious ideology and practice and seek to join with other Jews in accepting that diversity while working toward a shared vision of Jewish peoplehood.

The Reconstructionist philosophy affirms the uniqueness of the Jewish people and its heritage among the peoples of the world. However, our affirmation of Judaism's uniqueness implies no sense of superiority over others. Reconstructionists believe that all peoples are called to the service of righteousness, and we welcome dialogue with people of good will from all traditions.
